Edgar Filing: CBOE Holdings, Inc. - Form 425

- Eighteen of the twenty busiest single trading days in CBOE's 35-year history occurred during 2008, including the all-time, single-day leader 9,975,464 contracts traded on September 18, 2008.

- The CBOE Volatility Index (VIX) experienced the widest range of daily closes ever in a calendar year during 2008 – 16.30 on May 15 (low of the year) to 80.86 on November 20 (high of the year); the average daily VIX closing level was 32.65 during the year. In addition, the Index closed above 50 on fifty trading days during the year, a level not reached before 2008. The CBOE Volatility Index is derived from real-time S&P 500 Index (SPX) options prices and is designed to reflect investors' consensus view of expected near-term stock market volatility over the next 30 days. On November 21, the CBOE S&P BuyWrite Index (BXM) generated a gross premium of 8.1 percent, the highest amount in more than two decades.

- Trading in CBOE Volatility Index options continued its growth in 2008 as nearly 26 million contracts traded during the year, an increase of close to 11 percent over the previous record of 23.4 million contracts traded in 2007. Average daily volume rose to 102,560 contracts from 93,181 contracts in 2007. Options on VIX, launched in February 2006, already rank as CBOE's second most-actively traded index option and have been the most successful new product launch in recent CBOE history.

- The CBOE Futures Exchange, LLC (CFE) announced that 2008 was the busiest year in its five-year history as volume totaled 1,161,019 contracts. Volume in 2008 rose two percent over 1,136,295 contracts traded last year and marked the fourth consecutive year of record annual trading volume at CFE. Average daily volume for the year was 4,589 contracts, compared to the year-ago average daily volume of 4,527 contracts. Volume in CFE's most-actively traded contract, VIX futures, based on the CBOE Volatility Index (ticker VX), totaled a record 1,088,090 contracts during 2008, up four percent from 1,046,475 contracts traded in 2007, the previous high. On the year, average daily volume in VIX futures was 4,301 contracts, versus 4,169 contracts per day in 2007.

- In its second year of trading, volume at the CBOE Stock Exchange (CBSX) totaled 3,604,649,431 shares (average daily volume of 14,426,626 shares per day) versus 1,072,401,400 shares in 2008 (ADV 4,272,516 shares), up 236 percent. In December, 280,090,503 shares were traded, an average daily volume of 12,731,386. CBSX launched on March 5, 2007.

- A total of 111 CBOE memberships were sold during the year, ranging from $1.75 million to $3.3 million. All-time high sales were transacted during the summer – $3.3 million on June 18 and $3.2 million on June 17, surpassing the previous record price of $3.15 million set on December 11, 2007.
