Smart Online Announces Settlement of SEC Civil Complaint

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (BUSINESS WIRE) Sept. 28, 2007 Smart Online, Inc. (OTCBB: SOLN), a leading provider of Software-as-a-Service (SaaS) applications for the small business market, today announced that it has consented to the entry of a final judgment that settles the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) investigation previously disclosed by Smart Online.

In concluding the settlement, Smart Online consented to the entry of a final judgment by the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York without admitting or denying the allegations of the complaint filed by the SEC. The final judgment permanently enjoins Smart Online and its officers, employees, and agents from violating the federal securities laws in connection with any future offers, purchases, and sales of securities. No fines or other monetary sanctions were levied against Smart Online.

The SEC's investigation related to possible manipulative conduct occurring in the market for Smart Online's stock. On September 11, 2007, Dennis Michael Nouri, Smart Online's former President and Chief Executive Officer and member of the Board of Directors, Reeza Eric Nouri, a former manager of Smart Online, and four brokers were arrested on charges of securities fraud and conspiracy to commit fraud brought by the United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York. These individuals were also named in the SEC's civil complaint, and the SEC's action remains open with respect to these individuals.

David E. Colburn, Smart Online's Interim President and Chief Executive Officer and a member of the Board of Directors, stated "I am pleased that the SEC has worked with us to settle this matter so quickly so that we can focus on our operations. We felt that the settlement, which does not impose any fine or other monetary penalty against the Company, was in our stockholders' best interests to avoid the cost and distraction of litigation. We have provided our full cooperation to the SEC and U.S. Attorney and will continue to offer any assistance requested by them in connection with the civil and criminal complaints pending against Michael and Eric Nouri.
