Countrywide Home Loans Extends Agreement For Broadband Training Network With Gilat's Spacenet Subsidiary Fortune 500 financial company extends pact with Spacenet for VSAT network at 500 sites

Petah Tikva, Israel, November 25, 2003 Gilat Satellite Networks Ltd. (Nasdaq: GILTF) today announced that Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., a national leader in residential finance, has renewed its agreement with Gilat's US subsidiary, Spacenet Inc., for its 500-site nationwide satellite-based data network.

Countrywide Home Loans initially contracted with Spacenet in June 1999 for a satellite network to support Interactive Distance Learning (IDL) applications at its home mortgage offices around the country. Based on the consistently strong performance of the Gilat Skystar Advantage VSAT platform, Countrywide recently expanded the capacity of its Spacenet network to support multiple concurrent training sessions.

Countrywide's decision to extend its agreement with Spacenet was an easy choice for us, said Al Tappe, executive vice president for Countrywide Home Loans' Consumer Markets Division. The application has been a tremendous asset to our organization. Spacenet's customer support and service have been excellent. Their network applications have demonstrated Spacenet's capability to accommodate our evolving business needs well into the future.

Spacenet's number one priority is ensuring our customer's business needs are served in a superior manner and that they enjoy a long and effective return on their investment, said Spacenet Vice President of Sales and Marketing David Shiff. Achieving this goal requires that we continue to advance our technology such that it can readily accommodate the evolving needs of the marketplace and that we deliver our service with superior responsiveness and support. Countrywide's decision to extend their contract with us is a strong indication that customers value our attention and responsiveness to their needs.
