Industry Leaders Merge to Deliver Full Continuum of Senior Living Solutions

Combined senior living expertise meets evolving needs of seniors

Brookdale Senior Living Inc. and Emeritus Senior Living plan to combine their award-winning expertise, resources and dedication with the goal of better serving those in their care. With the nation's senior population growing rapidly, this merger will support them and their families with an unprecedented continuum of services throughout the aging experience.

Brookdale Senior Living Inc. is a leading owner and operator of senior living communities throughout the United States. The Company is committed to providing senior living solutions within properties that are designed, purpose-built and operated to provide the highest-quality service, care and living accommodations for residents. For the past 35 years, Brookdale has earned an exceptional reputation for the high quality care and services it provides coast to coast.

Emeritus is the nation's premier provider of assisted living and memory care communities. Emeritus, which has served seniors and families for more than 20 years, has a passion for making a difference in the lives of residents.

Upon the merger's anticipated completion in the third quarter of 2014, the new company to be known as Brookdale Senior Living will have over 1,100 senior living communities in 46 states. It will serve more than 112,000 seniors and their families with a workforce of over 80,000. Its scope of services will include independent living, assisted living, dementia care, skilled nursing, home health, hospice, therapies, short-term rehabilitation, long-term care and private-duty home care. The company also plans to create a comprehensive post-acute care continuum.

Most importantly, the companies' shared dedication to providing seniors with outstanding care, meaningful lives and innovative answers to questions of aging will be central to the new organization, now and into the future.

PROFESSIONAL REFERRALS

<<http://brookdaleforward.com/referrals.html>>

For Our Professional Referrals

Brookdale and Emeritus Emeritus have made an agreement to merge. With this news, we want you to be assured that you will continue to receive the excellent quality, attention, responsiveness and communication you expect from partnering with us.

This merger is an exciting move forward for seniors and their families because it will create the only national senior living solutions company. The newly formed company to be known as Brookdale Senior Living will have over 1,100 communities in 46 states. It will be able to serve more than 112,000 seniors and their families with a workforce of over 80,000 employees.

Becoming large is not as important as providing great care. With this merger, we are uniting the expertise and resources of the nation's two leading senior living companies to provide the full continuum of care to the rapidly-growing population of people age 65 and above. The combined organization will create a full complement of senior solutions in senior living, home health, hospice, therapies, short-term rehabilitation and long-term care. We will offer greater choice, enabling us to address both affordability and lifestyle when selecting services. We will also offer more options for care and services, with the flexibility to make transitions as life changes.

Our companies' cultures and values have many similarities. The most important core value is at the foundation of everything we do—we are passionately committed to making a difference in the lives of those in our care. To that end, the new organization will deliver significant benefits to our residents:

By bringing together two of the industry's premier providers, we will be able to continue to evolve and expand the services that residents receive.

With more resources, we can further enhance programs and services.

We can continue to renovate and enhance the communities' living spaces.

We can also invest in systems and infrastructure that will benefit our employees. This allows our staff to focus on what they do best—care for our residents and families.

Thank you for your loyalty and support as we determine our next steps, and for being an important part of our mission to make a positive difference in our residents' lives.

Expected Timing

The merger is expected to be completed in the third quarter of 2014. Until that time, nothing will change in how we do business and we will continue working together as we have since our partnerships began.

BUSINESS PARTNERS

<<http://brookdaleforward.com/partners.html>>

For Our Business Partners

Brookdale and Emeritus have entered into an agreement to merge to form a national senior living solutions company one that offers the full continuum of care for the rapidly-growing senior population. With our shared passion for the well-being of seniors, this merger makes sense as the next step for our organizations from both a care and business standpoint.

The newly-formed company will have more than 1,100 communities in 46 states. A workforce of over 80,000 will serve more than 112,000 seniors and their families. This merger will allow us to evolve and expand the services residents receive as we combine resources and share our best practices.

Expected Timing

We are in the initial information-gathering stage of the process. The merger is expected to be completed in the third quarter of 2014. Between now and then, we know it is important to continue to work together with our valued business partners and vendors to best serve our residents and communities.

Once this merger is finalized, leadership from the new organization will review all of our partner and vendor relationships to evaluate how they can serve the company going forward. Until that time, nothing will change in how we do business and we will continue working together as we have since our partnerships began.

Expanded Senior Living Solutions Company Will Meet Needs of Silver Tsunami

As America's silver tsunami draws nearer, a newly-expanded national senior living solutions company will offer an unprecedented continuum of services for seniors and their families. This is the result of a planned merger of Brookdale Senior Living and Emeritus Senior Living. This year, the youngest baby boomers turn 50 and according to the U.S. Census Bureau, people 65 and over are expected to represent 20% of the population by 2030, nearly a two-thirds increase in percentage from 2010.

Upon anticipated completion of the merger in the third quarter of 2014, the combination of Brookdale Senior Living and Emeritus Senior Living to operate as Brookdale Senior Living (or Brookdale) will have more than 1,100 senior living communities in 46 states, including the nation's 30 largest metropolitan areas. It will be able to serve more than 112,000 seniors and their families with a workforce of over 80,000 associates. Brookdale's scope of services will include independent living, assisted living, dementia care, skilled nursing, home health, hospice, therapies, short-term rehabilitation, long-term care and private-duty home care. The company also plans to create a comprehensive post-acute care continuum.

Offering the array of senior living solutions is designed to meet the America's growing demand for services as well as the varying needs of individuals throughout the aging process.

Each person ages differently and every family has its own unique situation, said T. Andrew Smith, chief executive officer for Brookdale Senior Living. Seniors often require varying types and levels of care, sometimes in combination with one another, at different times of their lives. Along with a greater geographic presence, this merger will expand the services and solutions we can offer to those in our care now and into the future. In bringing together the nation's leading providers of award-winning senior living solutions, we will continue to develop and enhance services as we combine resources and share our best practices.

Brookdale's scope and breadth after the merger will enable it to help shape senior care for the future.

Our two organizations have been dedicated to constant innovation, said Smith. As we continue this focus, we seek to provide care models that will help the nation in meeting the needs for the rapidly growing senior population. Smith noted that by 2050, the projected population of Americans 65 and over will reach 88.5 million, more than double the figure from 2010.

Brookdale and Emeritus have a shared value that is at the foundation of everything we do, said Granger Cobb, president and CEO for Emeritus. We are passionately committed to making a difference in the lives of those in our care and to advocacy for seniors and their families. Together, we will remain committed to listening to their needs and concerns, and tailoring our services to meet those needs.

The closing of the transaction under the merger agreement is subject to, among other closing conditions, shareholder votes from both companies, regulatory approvals and certain third-party consents. It is expected to be completed in the third quarter of 2014.

RESIDENTS AND FAMILIES FAQ

<<http://brookdaleforward.com/images/resident-faq.pdf>>

Residents and Families

Frequently Asked Questions:

Why are the companies merging?

Being large is not as important as providing great care. With the nation's senior population growing, more seniors and families are in need of senior living and senior care services. This merger will create the first truly national senior living company offering the most comprehensive set of senior care solutions.

Brookdale and Emeritus Senior Living are well-matched for this purpose, and this decision makes sense from both a care and business standpoint. We share a rich heritage and similar strengths, including customer-focused cultures and a commitment to continuous improvement and innovation. We also have a shared value that is at the foundation of everything we do - we are passionately committed to making a difference in the lives of those we serve.

Who is Emeritus?

Emeritus Senior Living is the largest assisted living and memory care provider in the United States, with the ability to serve nearly 54,000 residents. More than 31,000 employees support approximately 510 communities throughout 45 states coast to coast. Emeritus offers the spectrum of senior residential choices, care options, and life enrichment programs that fulfill individual needs and promote purposeful living during the aging process. Senior living service offerings include independent living, assisted living, memory care, skilled nursing, home health care, and rehabilitation services. For more information: www.emeritus.com.

What services will the new company offer?

The combined organization will expand the continuum of senior living solutions offered, including independent living, assisted living, dementia care, skilled nursing, home health, hospice, therapies, short-term rehabilitation, long-term care and private-duty home care.

What will change for the residents?

You will continue to receive the same excellent care and service you to expect at your community. You will continue to be assisted by the same staff you have come to know and continue to enjoy all the amenities of your community.

Will my community change? Amenities? Services?

There will be little change in the operation of your community. You will continue to receive the same excellent care and service you have come to expect while living in your communities. You will continue to be assisted by the same employees you have come to know, and continue to enjoy all the amenities of your communities – your homes! Over time, we expect to combine our best practices for improvements and enhancements in service and care.

Where are we in the process? When will the merger be final?

We have announced that Brookdale and Emeritus have signed an agreement to merge the two organizations. The closing of the transaction under the merger agreement is subject to, among other closing conditions, shareholder votes from both companies, regulatory approvals and certain third-party consents. It is expected to be completed in the third quarter of 2014.

Will my rates or care fees be increasing?

The merger will not impact pricing. We work with residents one at a time and economic arrangements and levels of care are unique to each resident's needs. Historically, rates in senior housing are affected by such things as operating costs, changes in the regulatory environment and general economic conditions.

Who do I talk to if I have a concern?

Please speak with your Executive Director. Your ED will also have contacts and resources to help address questions where more information may be needed.

What are the biggest differences between Brookdale and Emeritus and how will care be different with the new company?

Frankly, what's interesting is how similar our companies are. Brookdale and Emeritus have shared values that are at the foundation of everything we do - we are passionately committed to making a difference in the lives of those for whom we care, and we value honesty, integrity, partnership, and trust. In both organizations, our employees view what they do as more than a job; it's a calling. Together, we will remain committed to listening to our residents' needs and concerns, and tailoring our services to meet those needs. We are both leaders in our industry because we have done the right things. We plan to do observations to understand how and why things are done a certain way and over time combine our processes in such things as the dining programs and clinical services platforms. It's important to note that both companies take care of residents one person at a time.

Who will be my main point of contact once the merger is complete?

Your Executive Director, who we expect will remain the same.
