STRATUS SHOULD BE SOLD

Dear Fellow Stratus Stockholders:

I write to you as the largest stockholder of Stratus Properties Inc., or Stratus. I would like to highlight to you what I believe to be Stratus' selective use of performance graphs.

History of Stratus' Peer Group Comparisons

Stratus began using a performance graph in its filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission in its May 2003 proxy statement showing a comparison between Stratus' stock price, the S&P 500 Stock Index and an index for real estate stocks. Each year after that, the performance graph appeared in its proxy statement and/or its Form 10-K filing.

Below is the first graph that appeared in May 2002 showing a five-year comparison of Stratus against the two indexes.

Stratus suspended this practice after filing its 2009 Form 10-K. Below is the last performance graph used in Stratus annual filings until Stratus reinstated this practice in its 2015 Form 10-K. Stratus omits to note what I believe to be the significant impact on its year end 2015 stock price of my December 2015 Schedule 13D filing which described the submission of my stockholder proposal and my intent to nominate two individuals to the Stratus Board.

STRATUS SHOULD BE SOLD

Between 2002 and 2008, these performance graphs typically showed significant outperformance by Stratus. This was particularly true in 2005, 2006 and 2007.

Had it shown the same performance graph in 2009, Stratus' s performance in the previous five years would have been negative (32%) versus negative (8%) for the S&P 500 index. (The December 31, 2004, Stratus share price was $16.03 per share; the December 31, 2009, closing share price was $11.00 per share).

Had Stratus included the five-year performance graph in 2011 for the previous five years (i.e., the period between December 31, 2005, and December 31, 2010), Stratus' stock performance would have been down (61%), versus up 1% for the S&P 500 stock index. Accordingly, Stratus' most recent 2015 performance starts from a very low base at December 31, 2010 (which is now the beginning date for Stratus' reintroduced performance chart in its 2015 Form 10-K).

To reiterate, Stratus suspended publicly its peer group reporting between 2009 and 2014, in my view because it would have shown dramatic underperformance in those periods. Shouldn't public companies be more transparent to its stockholders?

IT IS TIME FOR A CHANGE

Please consider my proxy carefully, consider the credibility of the company's statements and vote your GOLD proxy card and support the Berg Nominees.

Sincerely,

Carl Berg
