Item 2.05 Costs Associated with Exit or Disposal Activities

In April 2009, American Express Company (the "Company") announced its intention to undertake a new companywide reengineering initiative in the second quarter of 2009 to help further reduce its operating costs in light of the uncertain economic outlook. On May 18, 2009, the Company's management committed to undertake various reengineering activities within its business units and staff groups that are expected to result in a restructuring charge in the second quarter of 2009 of approximately $180 million to $250 million pre-tax ($117 million to $163 million after tax). The reengineering activities are expected to result in the elimination of approximately 4,000 jobs, which constitutes approximately 6% of the Company's worldwide workforce. The total expected charge includes approximately $175 million to $210 million in employee severance obligations and other employee-related costs and approximately $5 million to $40 million in other costs principally relating to the termination of certain real property leases and other contracts. The reengineering activities relate principally to downsizing and reorganizing certain operations due to a contraction of some of the Company's businesses. Substantially all of the reengineering activities are expected to be completed by the end of 2009, with the remainder expected to be completed by the first half of 2010. The Company estimates that all of the severance and employee-related costs and a significant majority of the other costs will result in future cash expenditures.

Item 7.01 Regulation FD Disclosure

In addition to the restructuring charge described above, the Company announced that it anticipates that the reengineering activities associated with the staffing-related portion of the charge will result in a cost benefit to the Company of approximately $175 million after all the initiatives to be undertaken in 2009 have been completed. Also, in addition to staff reductions, the Company announced that it was undertaking further reengineering initiatives, including a reduction of investment spending in marketing and business development and a reduction in other operating costs relating to expenses for consulting and other professional services, travel and general overhead, all of which are expected to result in an additional cost benefit of approximately $625 million in the aggregate.

The aggregate benefits of $800 million described above, which are expected to be realized during the remainder of 2009, represent a reduction from previously planned 2009 spending levels and are in addition to the benefits tied to the reengineering plan announced in October 2008.

A copy of the Company's press release announcing the reengineering activities describe above is furnished as Exhibit 99.1 to this Current Report on Form 8-K and is incorporated herein by reference.
