Edgar Filing: PITNEY BOWES INC /DE/ - Form 8-K

Software supports the areas we have previously identified for sustained growth in customer and shareholder value - mailstream expansion, document management, global penetration and cross-selling. Software is an increasingly important part of our value proposition for mailers. Group 1 has a broad range of address management, data quality, document generation and delivery and marketing campaign management software applications that complement our existing mailing software business and products. These capabilities have become even more important in light of the U.S. Postal Service's recent focus on intelligent mail and address quality. It will also expand our mail stream participation by adding 3,000 high- and mid-volume mailing customers worldwide."

Mr. Critelli continued, "One of the ways we plan to grow our document management presence is by integrating mail and documents enterprise-wide across multiple customer touch points and business processes, which we call customer communications management (CCM). We feel Group 1's suite of solutions helps lay the foundation for profitable expansion in the $4 billion, and growing, CCM market. Its extensive product line, infrastructure and strong presence outside of the U.S. will enable us to expand our range of mailstream solutions worldwide and also offers an opportunity for cross-selling to our respective customer bases.

Our brand promise is engineering the flow of communication™. In other words, we help organizations of all sizes get the right message to the right customer or prospect at the lowest possible cost. The acquisition of Group 1 enhances our ability to add value to every piece of mail and its contents by reducing its costs, increasing its effectiveness, and enhancing its impact on customer relationships."

Group 1 Software, headquartered in Lanham, Maryland, began providing postal and direct mail software in 1982.
