March 2010 Highlights:

- On March 5, CBOE announced that it had entered into a license agreement with CME Group that extends the reach of CBOE's volatility franchise. Under the agreement, CBOE will apply its proprietary CBOE Volatility Index® (VIX®) methodology to price data of, initially, up to five products that will be listed on one of CME Group's exchanges and create new volatility benchmark indexes that it will license for use to CME Group. CBOE also will disseminate real-time data on the new benchmark indexes to CME Group and industry data providers.
- On March 5, CBOE launched trading in options on the S&P 500® Dividend Index (ticker symbol DVS). The first contract of its kind in the U.S., S&P 500 Dividend Index options are listed exclusively at CBOE.
- March was the second busiest trading month ever for the CBOE Futures Exchange (CFE), with 217,429 contracts changing hands (nearly 9,500 contracts ADV). For the month, trading volume was up 333 percent when compared to 50,271 contracts in March 2009 and up 16 percent from 188,236 contracts in February 2010. March 2010's ADV ranked in the top five all-time monthly ADV at CFE.
- On March 5, the CBOE Stock Exchange (CBSX) celebrated its third anniversary. During March 2010, CBSX trading volume totaled 256.0 million shares, down 33 percent from March 2009 when 381.0 million shares changed hands.

- The top five most actively traded index and ETF options at CBOE were the S&P 500 Index (SPX), Standard & Poor's Depositary Receipts (SPY), CBOE Volatility Index (VIX), PowerShares QQQ Trust (QQQQ) and iShares Trust-Russell 2000 Index Fund (IWM).

- The top five most actively traded equity options at CBOE were Citigroup (C), Apple (AAPL), Bank of America (BAC), Ford Motor Company (F) and General Electric (GE).
