AECOM-URS partnership: Significance for Environment

July 17, 2014

Environment Chief Executive Matthew Sutton speaks to the transformational union of two world-class companies AECOM and URS, and what it means for the Environment business.

As you know, AECOM CEO Mike Burke recently shared the news that AECOM is acquiring URS. This combination of two industry leaders, both with world-class capabilities and people, will give AECOM an unsurpassed capacity to deliver integrated capabilities across the design, build, finance, and operate spectrum. The combined company will be a leading, fully integrated infrastructure and support services provider, with over 95,000 employees in more than 150 countries.

This is truly exciting and positive news for our environmental business as our combined businesses create the world's largest and best environmental services provider in terms of size, scope, depth of services and geographic reach. That is why this is such a landmark event for us. And I agree with Mike Burke's assessment ...that this transaction will offer our employees the greatest set of professional opportunities in our industry, and will help all of us achieve our highest career aspirations. In terms of the client base and service offering, the merger with URS is so extraordinarily complementary that successfully integrating our companies makes it transformative.

However, it is important to remember that until the transaction closes, winning work and delivery projects for our clients is our number one priority. We have built solid momentum from our strong wins and bookings in the second and third quarters and it is critical for us all to keep up this momentum going strong. Please keep your focus on project execution and client service.

Remember too that URS is a competitor until the close and we should not interact with them. If you have any questions on this please share them with your manager or the resources associated with the integration team. Be sure to read the updated Rules of the Road by Kevin Lynch, Integration lead, for guidance.

Details of the transaction are posted on myAECOM as well as our external website, and include the following resources to assist you in your conversations with clients and peers:

You can also monitor real-time communications, comments, and questions related to the acquisition by following the topic URS on Chatter. Know too that AECOM is looking for feedback and concerns and urges you to share those with your manager or the feedback mechanisms.

Lastly, we respect and try to balance your desire for information with a minimum of repetition by emphasizing that information which is relevant to our Environment business. Please send questions, comments, and feedback regarding this information to John Petraglia, director of strategic communications, Environment, or your manager.

Cautionary Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements

This article may include forward-looking statements. All statements other than statements of historical fact are forward-looking statements for purposes of federal and state securities laws. These forward-looking statements, which are based on current expectations, estimates and projections about the industry and markets in which AECOM and URS operate and beliefs of and assumptions made by AECOM management and URS management, involve uncertainties that could significantly affect the financial results of AECOM or URS or the combined company. Words such as expects, anticipates, intends, plans, believes, seeks, estimates, variations of such words and similar expressions are intended to identify such forward-looking statements. Such forward-looking statements include, but are not limited to, statements about the benefits of the transaction involving AECOM and URS, including future financial and operating results, the combined company's plans, objectives, expectations and intentions. All statements that address operating performance, events or developments that we expect or anticipate will occur in the future including statements relating to creating value for stockholders, benefits of the transaction to customers and employees of the combined company, integrating our companies, cost savings, providing stockholders with a more attractive currency, and the expected timetable for completing the proposed transaction are forward-looking statements. These statements are not guarantees of future performance and involve certain risks, uncertainties and assumptions that are difficult to predict. Although we believe the expectations reflected in any forward-looking statements are based on reasonable assumptions, we can give no assurance that our expectations will be attained and therefore, actual outcomes and results may differ materially from what is expressed or forecasted in such forward-looking statements. For example, these forward-looking statements could be affected by factors including, without limitation, risks associated with the ability to consummate the merger and the timing of the closing of the merger; the failure to obtain the necessary debt financing arrangements set forth in the commitment letter received in connection with the merger; the interest rate on any borrowings incurred in connection with the transaction; the impact of the indebtedness incurred to finance the transaction; the ability to successfully integrate our operations and employees; the ability to realize anticipated benefits and synergies of the transaction; the potential impact of announcement of the transaction or consummation of the transaction on relationships, including with employees, customers and competitors; the outcome of any legal proceedings that have been or may be instituted against URS and/or AECOM and others following announcement of the transaction; the ability to retain key personnel; the amount of the costs, fees, expenses and charges related to the merger and the actual terms of the financings that will be obtained for the merger; changes in financial markets, interest rates and foreign currency exchange rates; and those additional risks and factors discussed in reports filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) by AECOM and URS. AECOM and URS do not intend, and undertake no obligation, to update any forward-looking statement.

Additional Information about the Proposed Transaction and Where to Find It

In connection with the proposed transaction, AECOM intends to file with the SEC a registration statement on Form S-4 that will include a joint proxy statement of AECOM and URS that also constitutes a prospectus of AECOM.
