The following is a memo from Richard M. Steeves, CEO of Synergy Health plc, that was sent by SRI/Surgical Express, Inc. to its employees on June 7, 2012.

Memo

To: SRI Surgical Express Team

From: Richard M Steeves

Date: 7 June 2012

Re: Proposed offer to acquire SRI Surgical Express Inc

I wanted to take this opportunity to briefly introduce Synergy, set out our interest in SRI and explain our vision for the future of our combined business in the US.

You may be interested to know that our respective businesses started almost at the same time. In the UK I established one of the first processing facilities for reusable surgical linen in late 1991 and then went on to create a market for outsourced central hospital sterilization services in 1996. Over the remaining years we identified other opportunities to develop our business in outsourced services including healthcare linen, pathology and microbiology. In the last five years we've become the world's second largest provider of outsourced sterilization services for medical device manufacturers and we're one of the top two global providers of central sterilization services for hospitals.

As a result of our formative years we have a deep understanding of the ambition but also the challenges that have faced SRI. In my visits to your facilities I've seen both innovative practices that we can help to build upon, but also challenges and barriers to progress that I believe we can help resolve with our technology and knowhow. As a combined team, we will definitely be stronger.

We have a vision to establish SRI/Synergy as the leading provider of central sterilization services and to build upon the success that SRI has enjoyed as a leader in environmentally sound service provision to the healthcare community. The US market seems ready for both services, and as a combined team we can realize this vision.

I'd like to guide you to our website www.synergyhealthplc.com to learn a little more about Synergy and particularly the way in which we operate our business. I know that many of you will have been concerned about the uncertainty that inevitably arises when there is a strategic review of the sort that SRI has been through. Over our 20 years we have been careful to operate our business in a careful manner, considerate of all of the stakeholders in our business: our employees, customers, suppliers and investors. That's why we named the business Synergy. We have four core values that are central to the way we work: integrity; accountability; achievement; and innovation. Collectively we are very passionate about our business and it's the adherence to these core values together with the passion and enthusiasm that has led to our success. I see these same core values expressed by the team I've met at SRI, and whilst we will have to implement some changes to improve the performance of the business, I'm confident that as a team we'll be able to create a very bright future for the company over the coming years.

If our proposal to your shareholders is accepted, our combined business (including MSI in New York) will make us the largest provider of central sterilization services not only in the United States, but also globally. I hope you will agree that this is an exciting position to start a new journey together, and I look forward to working with the team at SRI.
