New Medtronic Leader Interview with Mike Coyle

What Is Your Background?

So I'm an engineer by training. I've spent virtually my whole career in the cardiovascular space, mostly for competitors of Medtronic. I've really just spent the last 5 years here trying to build on the breadth and scale that Medtronic has in the cardiovascular space.

Why Did You Pursue a Career In Healthcare?

I remember vividly when I was graduating with my undergraduate degree in Chemical Engineering getting an opportunity to take a job in the chemical industry or in the pharmaceutical industry or in the petroleum industry. And I really decided if I was going to be working hard all day, I'd rather do it in an area where I could really affect people's lives as in the healthcare space.

What Is a Key Area of Passion for You?

While I love all the aspects of the Medtronic core strategies, I have to say that the one that really gets my juices flowing is the idea of therapy innovation, to be able to take a, unmet clinical need identified by a physician and match it up with what engineers can do and really create a solution that really impacts people's lives.

What Do You Think of This Deal and the New Medtronic?

Medtronic is going to have unique breadth and capability across the cardiovascular space, the neuroscience space, the general surgery space, and the idea that we'll be able to win in each individually but then collectively, bring that to governments around the world, to payers around the world, to healthcare CEOs around the world. There's really a unique opportunity that no other company has.

What Do You See as the Most Exciting Opportunities Ahead?

To be the most exciting thing is to take complementary capabilities that each of the two companies have and put them together. Like the strong therapy development programs that we have around key innovations like our LINQ insertable monitor as well as the IN.PACT Admiral drug-coated balloon and put those together with the field capabilities that we have but within the peripheral vascular space as well as in the neurovascular space that Covidien brings to the company.

What Are the Key Challenges We Will Need to Overcome?

Together, this is going to be a very big company and I think the key is going to be to maintain the intimacy we have with our physician customers as we take advantage of the size and scale we have as a combined organization.

What Is Your Leadership Style?

I'm very committed to being very clear about the core strategies that we have and the roles and responsibilities that I expect people to execute on. But then I want to delegate that authority down to the people who can actually make it happen on the ground.

What Activities/Interests Do You Enjoy Outside of Work?

Well, I have 2 children, one who is just starting college and one who just is finishing up high school. My life for the better part of the last 15 years has been focused on everything that they do. So at the moment, that's my key area of focus outside of work. And when they're both off to college, I think I'll have to find some other things to do.

Medtronic Cautionary Statement Regarding Forward-Looking Statements

Statements contained in this communication that refer to New Medtronic's and/or Medtronic's estimated or anticipated future results, including estimated synergies, or other non-historical facts are forward-looking statements that reflect Medtronic's current perspective of existing trends and information as of the date of this communication.

Forward-looking statements generally will be accompanied by words such as anticipate, believe, plan, could, should, estimate, expect, forecast, outlook, guidance, intend, may, might, will, possible, potential, or other similar words, phrases or expressions. It is important to note that Medtronic's goals and expectations are not predictions of actual performance. Actual results may differ materially from Medtronic's current expectations depending upon a number of factors affecting New Medtronic's business, Medtronic's business, Covidien's business and risks associated with the proposed transactions. These factors include, among others, the inherent uncertainty associated with financial projections; restructuring in connection with, and successful close of, the Covidien acquisition; subsequent integration of the Covidien acquisition and the ability to recognize the anticipated synergies and benefits of the Covidien acquisition; the risk that the required regulatory approvals for the proposed transactions are not obtained, are delayed or are subject to conditions that are not anticipated; the anticipated size of the markets and continued demand for Medtronic's and Covidien's products; the impact of competitive products and pricing; access to available financing (including financing for the acquisition or refinancing of Medtronic or Covidien debt) on a timely basis and on reasonable terms; the risks of fluctuations in foreign currency exchange rates; the risks and uncertainties normally incident to the medical device industry, including competition in the medical device industry; product liability claims; the difficulty of predicting the timing or outcome of pending or future litigation or government investigations; variability of trade buying patterns; the timing and success of product launches; the difficulty of predicting the timing or outcome of product development efforts and regulatory agency approvals or actions, if any; potential for adverse pricing movement; costs and efforts to defend or enforce intellectual property rights; difficulties or delays in manufacturing; reduction or interruption in supply; product quality problems; the availability and pricing of third-party sourced products and materials; risks associated with self-insurance and commercial insurance; successful compliance with governmental regulations applicable to New Medtronic's, Medtronic's and Covidien's facilities, products and/or businesses; changes in the laws and regulations, affecting among other things, pricing and reimbursement of pharmaceutical products; health care policy changes; risks associated with international operations; changes in tax laws or interpretations that could increase New Medtronic's or Medtronic's consolidated tax liabilities, including, if the transaction is consummated, changes in tax laws that would result in New Medtronic being treated as a domestic corporation for United States federal tax purposes; the loss of key senior management or scientific staff; and such other risks and uncertainties detailed in Medtronic's periodic public filings with the SEC, including but not limited to Medtronic's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended April 25, 2014 and from time to time in Medtronic's other investor communications. Except as expressly required by law, each of New Medtronic and Medtronic disclaims any intent or obligation to update or revise these forward-looking statements.

Covidien Cautionary Statement Regarding Forward-Looking Statements

Statements contained in this communication that refer to Covidien's estimated or anticipated future results, including estimated synergies, or other non-historical facts are forward-looking statements that reflect Covidien's current perspective of existing trends and information as of the date of this communication. Forward-looking statements generally will be accompanied by words such as anticipate, believe, plan, could, should, estimate, expect, outlook, guidance, intend, may, might, will, possible, potential, predict, project, or other similar expressions. It is important to note that Covidien's goals and expectations are not predictions of actual performance. Actual results may differ materially from Covidien's current expectations depending upon a number of factors affecting Covidien's business, Medtronic's business and risks associated with the proposed transactions. These factors include, among others, the inherent uncertainty associated with financial projections; the timing to consummate the proposed transactions; the risk that a condition to closing of the proposed transactions may not be satisfied; the risk that the required regulatory approvals for the proposed transactions are not obtained, are delayed or are subject to conditions that are not anticipated; New Medtronic's ability to achieve the synergies and value creation contemplated by the proposed transactions; the anticipated size of the markets and continued demand for Medtronic's and Covidien's products; New Medtronic's ability to promptly and effectively integrate Medtronic's and Covidien's businesses; the diversion of management time on transaction-related issues; competitive factors and market conditions in the industry in which Covidien operates; Covidien's ability to obtain regulatory approval and customer acceptance of new products, and continued customer acceptance of Covidien's existing products; and the other risks identified in Covidien's periodic filings including its Annual Report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended September 27, 2013, and from time to time in Covidien's other investor communications. We caution you that the foregoing list of important factors is not exclusive. In addition, in light of these risks and uncertainties, the matters referred to in Covidien's forward-looking statements may not occur. Covidien undertakes no obligation to publicly update or revise any forward-looking statement as a result of new information, future events or otherwise, except as may be required by law.
